

LOW TIDES II

You know what would make a good story? Something about a clown who makes people happy, but inside he's real sad. Also, he has severe diarrhea.

Jack Handey

How did the Village People ever meet? They obviously led such different lives.

Donna Haraway

Having come home drunk too often, my wife said if I came home with puke on me once more, she'd leave. Nevertheless, the next night my friend asked if I wanted another drink. For the road. Naaaaah: I'll puke down me frun. She'll keck me out. He got me a double, toasted, and advised me to stick a ten pound note in my top pocket. Tell her: someone had been sick on me. It's for the cleaning bill.

Next morning, my wife sees my shirt. Wakes me and calmly tells me it's over. Wait, that wasn't me, that was this guy. His tenner in the top pocket is for the cleaning. And what about the other tenner? She asked. Oh... that's from the guy who shit in my pants.

Joe Pasquale goes into a bar.

He says to the barman, “I’d like a pint of beer please.”

The barman says, “Why don’t you just come around the bar, help yourself to the beer, and then walk off without paying for it? After all you are Joe Pasquale. Or perhaps send in someone else to steal the beer for you and then deny that beer can actually be owned. Say that you find the very concept of the ownership of beer ‘hard to understand.’ Or better still insist that it is your beer and that you brewed it at home in your house, even though your home lacks even the most rudimentary of brewing facilities.”

"Sex with your parents"

As charming as they seem, I often find Russian dolls to be quite full of themselves.

If you ever teach a yodeling class, probably the hardest thing is to keep the students from just trying to yodel right off. You see, we build to that.

Two Scotsmen are in a sauna together.

One of them asks the other, “What did you bring for lunch today?”

They both sit quietly for a while.

Then the other man says, “Sandwiches.”

Sol Lewitt and Hanne Darboeven are speaking by walkie-talkie.

HD: Sol, our relationship is over.

SL: Our relationship is what? Over.

HD: ...

SL: No seriously, you were breaking up there.

Duncan Campbell and Gerard Byrne are feeding white bread to the ducks in the park.

DC: Did you know Dublin is Ireland's biggest city?

GB: Is it now? Why's that then?

DC: Because it keeps Dublin and Dublin.

GB: I thought its population was more or less stable since industrialisation.
